Romantically unreal

Strangely unafraid of the notion it could fall into water, Venice seems more canal than land. This blissful blindness to the future echoes its visiting lovers. Piazza San Marco, Bellinis at Harry's Bar, hypnotic gondoliers getting couples to part with Euros. Somehow it all makes glorious sense here.

Five senses covered

A sensory overload. Marrakech comes scented with roses and dust. The cityscape is an eye-twisting eternally red mirage. The souk soundtrack is a buzz of mopeds. And the tastes of spice and orange blossom arrive on tastebuds even before the vast wooden doors concealing secret restaurants creak open.

All-American - or is it?

American Revolution landmarks. The best Irish pubs outside Ireland. The buzz of a Red Sox match day. Fresh lobster rolls and clam chowder. It doesn't matter why you visit Boston - it just matters that you do. And it welcomes you with Irish charm, English character and all-American energy.

Do before you die

Vegas is hard to believe. Best seen from above, it's a toy town in the middle of nowhere. Impossibly lush golf courses. High rollers hunting the big win. Increasingly outlandish hotels, vying to top neighbours in a curiously addictive mix of luxury and tack. A real 'bucket list' destination.

Skyscrapers and shopping malls

A moodboard of glass, marble and gold. Unlimited opulence and grand designs mean Abu Dhabi's silhouette is constantly on the move as new developments evolve and carve out their piece of sky. But it will stay a shopper's paradise for designer labels, jewellery and the odd traditional carpet.

Straight-up sunshine

It's little surprise Agadir became the beach capital of Morocco. It's got all the clichés most desire: palm-jewelled corniche, gold powder sand, bright blue bay. And, although it has an international flavour (compared to its neighbours), it still has that Moroccan zest - particularly in its dishes.

Rhythms of Rio

Ironically overshadowed by Bassa Nova beats, cacophonous carnivals, slick Latin moves and the impossibly beautiful people that seem to be hired by the tourist board to sit on Copacabana beach all day, you'd be forgiven if you forgot to look up and see Christ the Redeemer on Corcovado mountain.

It's all uphill from here

The hills never seem to go down in San Francisco. It's a city that really tests the hire car's handbrake. But, completely atmospheric, the fog-shrouded Golden Gate Bridge, barking seals of Pier 39, eerie chill of Alcatraz, and hip vibe of Haight-Ashbury make even the steepest hill worth the walk.

City break - beach retreat

Ultra-chic city break meets ultra-chilled beach escape. Centrepiece of Spain's infinitely popular coastline, Barcelona provides pause from the buzz on La Barceloneta's sands. But it adds unique sightseeing to rival any capital, with unfathomable Gaudi masterpieces and tapas bars lining the streets.

A blueprint for city breaks

Paris sets the benchmark for city breaks. It has all the essentials. Iconic landmarks like the inside-out Centre Pompidou. World-class museums full of world-class art. And every kind of eating experience - including pastries fit for a queen (literally) at Paris's original patisserie, Stohrer.

Down to earth

With rose-tinted spectacles on, many think this pink city remains in the past - Ville Rose is, after all, famed for Toulouse sausages, cassoulet and its medieval legacy. But Toulouse is firmly focused on the future, home to the Toulouse Space Centre, an outer space theme park and the HQ of Airbus.

A city in name alone

Vancouver does things differently. Clean, green and curiously friendly, it's no ordinary metropolis. Bike rides around Stanley Park reveal totem poles and beaches. Forests come complete with treetop walkways. Seaplanes give a new perspective. And boat trips seek out elusive orca whales.

History first-hand

No guidebook can prepare the first-time visitor for the vespas, cool Italian style and sheer ancientness of Rome. It's the guilty pleasure of being able to touch the Colosseum, walk among Swiss Guards in St Peter's Square and stand inches from masterpieces in the Vatican's Raphael Rooms.

Al fresco attractions

A unique blend of modern culture and 'the great outdoors', there aren't many places that mix world-class museums, dining and bars with kayaking, cycling and city centre salmon fishing. It's completely eclectic, from its trendy SoFo to its bizarre 'Cliff Barnes' eatery, named for the Dallas legend.

Capital in all but name

High flyers, bohemians and surf slackers live in harmony in a city much mistaken for the capital. It has enough curiosities to keep well-heeled travellers from leaving for the open road, from the Opera House to Harbour Bridge. But, at the city limits, Bondi Beach and the great road trip are calling.
